The French had invaded Egypt in 1798 with the likely goal of colonizing it and stabilizing trade. In early 1801 a British army of 20,000 invaded Egypt. The French surrendered to them on August 30. It was during this campaign that the British "liberated" the Rosetta Stone and brought it to England. After the Battle of Alexandria on March 21, William returned to Europe by ship, perhaps wounded. (Abercromby died of a wound received during that same battle.) It is believed the original hospital ship William was on sank and the crew and soldiers were rescued. They returned to Portsmouth, England. There he deserted his German Hessian unit, married, had a son George, and soon afterward immigrated to Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. The 1813 Militia Census for Captain Lawrence Kavanagh's Company Second Regt. C. Breton Militia, Second Military Division (River Bourgeois, St. Peter's, and Lenox Passage) states that he was born in Prussia, and served for 6 years in the 60th Regiment, he lived in St. Peter's on 200 acres with 1 woman and 1 girl, was a tailor. The family is all Catholic. In 1838 (census) he lived in L'Ardoise as "William Lafforte" with family of 11; tailor. Listed in 1861 census. His scissors are in the family archives, as is a rifle.
